Senator, honored today in resolution passed by Senate, paying tribute to him as a Statesman, former soldier of his country and mayor of his home town. Senator Bardill introduced Senate resolution No. 63 as follows: "Whereas: while on vacation in California there came to a peaceful close the long and honored life of Hon. Edmund Beall of the city of Alton, in Madison county who most ably and efficiently represented the 47th Senatorial district as a member of the Senate from 1910 to 1914 and Whereas: the distinguished statesman from Madison county in his early youth served with credit and admiration to his country and before his 16th year enlisted in 133rd Ill. Volunteer Infantry in the Civil War and at time of such enlistment was the youngest Union soldier from this commonwealth, his last service after being mustered out on Sept. 24, 1865, was that of assisting in the decoration of the old home-stead of Abraham Lincoln in Springfield and Whereas: the deceased also served creditably for several terms as the Mayor in his local city, Resolved that this preamble and resolution be spread on the records of the Senate and that suitable copy be sent to the bereaved family, June 17, 1921, p.2, c.1

Question before Council: Who owns land along river front south of Front St. from Market to Henry? Ordinance was passed by city council on Nov. 23, 1891, giving company that constructed Alton bridge across Miss. river right to this strip of land with exception of 100 ft. along river which was reserved for use of steamboat landings at any time. So far as is known no action was ever taken by city whereby city would get this strip back. Bridge ordinance shows that the St. Clair, Madison & St. Louis Bridge & R.R. Co. was given right to construct bridge and were given land referred to above, on condition they would use it for their railroad tracks and for Union passenger station; neither was ever built. Property was never returned. Notice served on owners of Bridge for restoration of property; upon failure for them to comply with their part of contract, Aug. 18, 1917, p.1, c.5

BRIDGES--Central Missouri Railway Company

In the U.S. Senate, yesterday, "Mr. Conger reported favorably from the committee on Commerce a bill authorizing the Central Missouri railway company to construct a railroad bridge across the Mississippi at or near Alton, Illinois, Mar. 10, 1886, p.3, c.3

Mr. Parkhurst and Clarke, Civil Engineers, acting for the Central Mo. railway company, have been engaged taking soundings for the depth of water and borings for quantity, of mud and sand overlying bed rock, and observations as to the velocity of the river current at this place, preparatory to work on the bridge, May 5, 1886, p.3, c.3

Meeting at City Hall last evening to consider the question of building a wagon bridge in connection with the Central Missouri railway bridge at this point. Mr. H.G.

McPike, one of the Directors of the C.M. railway company, stated that the company had executed first mortgage bonds to the amount of $11,000,000. One million dollars had been appropriated for the bridge, which was to be 14½ ft. wide. It was important to decide the question for the wagon bridge, as it would, in that case, be necessary to increase width of the structure to 18 feet. Work will commence immediately. He stated that by the charter the bridge charges would be only 3 cents a mile, the regular passenger rate, Nov. 2, 1886, p.3, c.3

It is reported that the contract for building the bridge over the Mississippi at this point has been let by the Central Missouri R.R. to the Union Bridge Co., Apr. 11, 1887, p.3, c.4

Sale of Ill. Packing Co. to August Luer and Herman Luer at Alton, brought out interesting facts concerning ownership and title of property. Land located on Front, Alton & 2nd Sts. Lots were originally part of section 14, Alton townships and were platted by Rufus Easton, Jan. 1, 1818, but survey was not named Alton. Christening of Alton followed later named after a brother of Rufus Easton, whose name was Alton. Owner became involved later on for the land was sold at sheriff's sale. Property went through various hands and came into ownership of Jesse Walton, in 1859. George S. Meyers and James T. Drummond bought portion of property in 1866 and 2 other properties in 1872. Meyers and Drummond started manufacture of tobacco and laid foundation for the fortunes. Property went through various transfers. Dausman and Drummond Tobacco Co. incorporated in 1876 for $100,000 and changed name to Drummond Tobacco Co. in 1879. It was acquired by Drummond-Randle Tobacco Co. 1885, afterwards started as competitor of Drummond Tobacco Co. which moved its plant to St. Louis. Litigation followed that involved question whether

Drummond-Randle Co. could use name of Drummond on its labels. It was a real fight in courts between James T. Drummond on one side and John N. Drummond and Charles H. Randle on the other side. John N. Drummond won the suit, and Drummond-Randle Company went out of business. Alton Packing & Refrigeration Co. purchased property in 1892, became Alton Packing Co. in 1899, was succeeded by Ill. Packing Co. in 1906. August and Herman Luer bid in the plant for $41,000 and named it Luer Packing Co., Apr. 28, 1911, p.1, c.1

G.F. Long, from Springfield, here witnessing Lincoln-Douglas debates celebration who formerly lived in Alton, was a boy at age 13 with his father upon platform sitting on rail watching movements and expressions of A. Lincoln in his speech; mentally he said "he don't amount to much." Pretty soon Lincoln began to warm up, his face glowed and the muscles of his neck and throat swelled up as whipcords when some great idea struck him and the orator swung his arms outwardly and wildly, sometimes lurching forward as he expressed his intense ideas. On one of these occasions he came very near where the boy was sitting, and Frank moved to get out of his way. Lincoln glanced down at Frank and said, "Never mind, little boy, I won't step on you." As one of "Father Abraham's soldiers" a few years later he was stepped on quite severely, by "minie rifle balls and bombs bursting in air" in wildest battle scenes in south and in last battle of Sherman's campaign at Bentonville, N.C., Oct. 16, 1908, p.1, c.7

A communication of Thos. Dimmock to Isaac H. Kelley: 'More than forty years ago, with a companion somewhat older than myself sought and found, the grave of Elijah Parish Lovejoy. It then lay between two quite large oak trees, and was marked by a small pine board, on which were rudely carved the initials 'E.P.L.' The present city cemetery was then an open common. When it was laid out the trees and board disappeared and the main avenue from the gate passed directly over the grave--the location of which would have been hopelessly lost, but for the late William Brudon, Superintendent of the cemetery, who marked the spot by fragments of lime stone of which very few knew the meaning. After being thus trodden under foot by man and beast for several years, the late Charles W. Hunter had the remains removed where they now are, just outside his own family lot, but in ground owned by him," Aug. 29, 1885, p.3, c.5

History of building brought to light when plans for remodeling are in full swing. It was a "towering" model of colonial architecture in a then well known and comparatively large city. Stephen A. Douglas and Abraham Lincoln, both candidates for U.S. Senate, held last of their famous debates near city hall; President Andrew Johnson addressed public and was taken to St. Louis by a 28 steamboat escort under Commander Joseph Brown, former Mayor of Alton and of St. Louis. His associates at that time were Wm. H. Seward, Sec't. of State and Gen. U.S. Grant. Pres. Millard Fillmore spoke here in 1851 on city hall site. Other presidential candidates who spoke here were John M. Palmer (1896), Lyman Trumbull (1872) and Wm. J. Bryan (1908). Mr. Frank and Mrs. Emily Tesson, 2 victims of Lusitania sinking, leave $29,201.37 estate for settlement among 2 sets of heirs. Court bases inheritance of property on theory of survival of fittest, holding that during their struggle with elements at Lusitania disaster scene, death of Mrs. Tesson occurred first, because of fact that woman is naturally less strong than man, who would make greater and more successful effort to save his life. Reasoning, therefore, followed that Mr. Tesson inherited the estate and in turn his set of heirs inherited it at his death, leaving Mrs. Tesson's heirs invalid as claimants, June 18, 1919, p.1, c.5
